GESTIÓN DE LA ACCESIBILIDAD

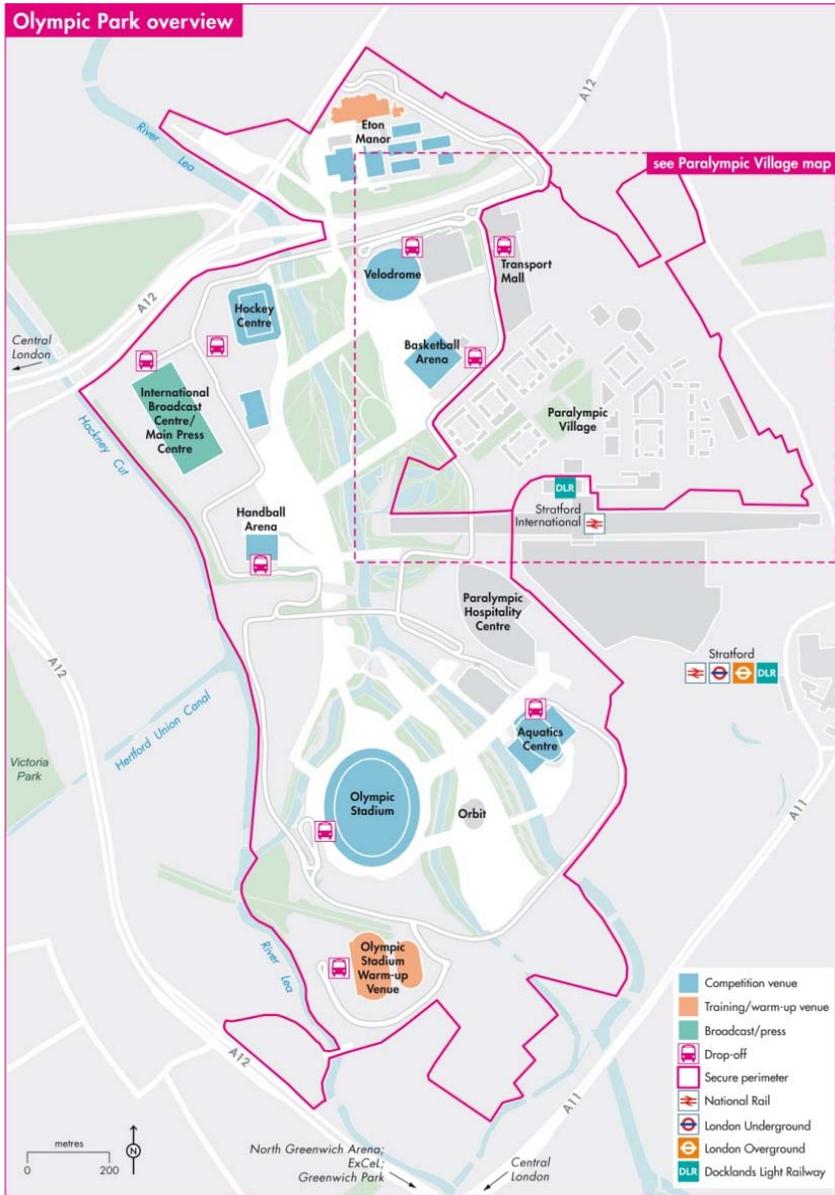

The screenshot shows the London 2012 website's accessibility page. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for "Schedule & Results", "Torch Relay", "Sports", "Athletes", "Countries", "Join In", "Spectators", "News", and "Photos". Below this is a "Countdown to the Opening Ceremony" section with a digital display showing "017:11:19". The main heading is "Accessibility", and there are sub-sections for "Accessible travel", "Web accessibility statement", and "Olympic venues". The "Olympic venues" section includes a dropdown menu for "Select venue" and a paragraph stating: "We are committed to ensuring that London 2012 is everyone's Games, with services and facilities to meet all accessibility requirements. Our aim has always been to provide a wide range of services and ticket products for disabled people, tailored to the needs of people rather than a 'one size fits all' approach." Below this is a "Tickets" section with the text: "London 2012 has created a ticketing process that is inclusive and accessible. It is important to us that people of all abilities can purchase tickets easily. For more information, please read Ticket information for disabled people on the London 2012 Ticketing website." At the bottom, there is a "Ticketcare" section with the text: "The Ticketcare scheme is available to those disabled people who do not need a wheelchair space but cannot come to the Games without a carer or PA. Ticketcare tickets are subject to availability and are not guaranteed." The page also features social media sharing icons and a Samsung GALAXY S III advertisement.
